PORTS (PORTOS)

Port, named for the city of Oporto at the mouth of Portugal's River, is fortified wine made from the grapes of the Douro Valley. Fortification started in the 1700s when locals, to keep the wine sweet and fruity, added brandy to halt fermentation. Ports are cask-aged, with the exception of the Vintage Ports, which are bottle-aged.

We carry Ports in the following styles:

RUBY: Aged 2 to 3 years in casks.

AGED TAWNY: Made by Master Blenders from high quality wines, aged in 10 year increments and labels accordingly.

RESERVE: Blends that have been aged 4 to 6 years, filtered and bottled. Great body with lots of fruit.

LATE BOTTLE VINTAGE (LBV): From a single "non-declared" vintage, aged 4 years, and labeled with a date.

SHERRIES

Sherry has been made from native grapes near Jerez in southern Spain since pre-Roman times.

PEDRO XIMENEZ, aka PX: A single varietal Sherry, noted as possibly the sweetest wine in the world. Overly ripe PX grapes are left to dry in the sun, resulting in concentrated, sweet flavors.

OLOROSO CREAM: Wine from the Palomino grape is blended with a little PX and stored in almost-full casks where a film of yeast ("flor") is allowed to grow. Fortified to 17.5% abv, which kills the yeast and allowed to go through oxidation. Nut and caramel notes.

MADEIRA

Madeira is made on an eponymous island 500 miles west of Lisbon, Portugal. Native grapes are blended and fortified with neutral spirits to halt fermentation, then heated slowly for 90 days before cask aging in hot houses. This is done to reproduce the lovely flavors that once developed in the sweltering casks on ships traveling through the tropics and elsewhere around the globe.

MALMSEY: The richest, sweetest style of Madeira. Dried fruits, molasses, caramel and walnuts. Delicious with a rich chocolate dessert, fruit, ice cream or alone.
